

Executive Director

Salary: £30k – £33k

The Islamic Society of Britain is looking for a dynamic person to take on the post of Executive Director of the organisation.

Reporting to the Deputy President, you will be responsible for driving the projects of the organisation, developing the organisation's portfolio of activities as per its strategic outlook and providing assistance and support to the President, Deputy President and the executive team.

An experienced and motivated leader and strong people manager with good interpersonal skills, you must have an understanding of the UK Muslim community and be able to engage with and lead others as part of a team. An understanding of the important role played by volunteers is essential as is strong organisational and project management skills.

The Islamic Society of Britain, established in 1990, has a national network of members and branches and is one of Britain's largest Muslim organisations. It was one of the first organisations that sought to evolve a uniquely British flavour of Islam and encourages Muslims to think seriously about understanding their faith in a British context.

For further information or to apply for this role please send your CV (in Word format), along with names of two referees and a covering letter to: comms@isb.org.uk.

Closing date for applications: Wed 30th June 2010. Interviews on: Sat 3rd July 2010.
Website: www.isb.org.uk.